

About AEI

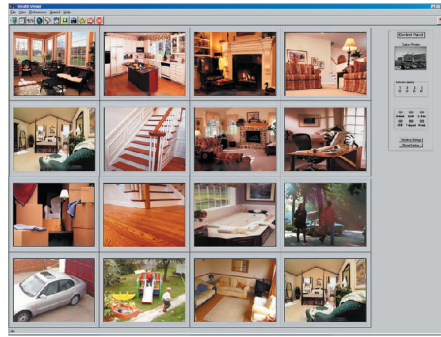

AEI Security & Communications Ltd has worked within the security industry for nearly 10 years, creating innovative concepts for many business sectors.

AEI is currently a leading UK provider of broadband internet access hardware and software as well as today's range of Stealth Big Brother™ products. We are also one of the UK's largest providers of domestic wireless A/V products, and provide by far the broadest range available in the UK today.

Other divisions within the company offer commercial grade communications antennae for GSM and LAN applications, as well as a multitude of consumer products of various categories.

The Stealth Big Brother™ system incorporates unique features developed entirely in the UK by our own software engineering team. You can share in our development without charge by simply downloading our trial web cam version from:

Introducing Stealth Big Brother™

Stealth Big Brother™ is a revolutionary new solution to CCTV surveillance. Instead of using conventional VCR's recording endless footage of CCTV images, you can now automatically detect movement within an image and share in a new generation of low cost, highly effective CCTV image processing for consumer and industry use using a conventional PC.

Introduction

Home & Small office

From simple to operate consumer styled and retail packaged products, you can create a superbly effective home surveillance system at an incredibly low cost. You can even obtain the trial web cam version as a free of charge download.

2 Camera Wirefree Monitoring System with USB Receiver

Choose from a variety of different pack options compatible with traditional low cost web cams, through to the high definition Stealth Big Brother™ series, using Sony® based element technology, providing extremely high quality image recording for any home or office.

Professional CCTV Solutions

As the range progresses, we are undertaking more development work on all aspects of hardware implementation and software functionality. We are continually generating a greater choice of dedicated Stealth Big Brother™ systems for business applications, providing a greater degree of flexibility for the installer as well as the end user.
